FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

GALAXY EXPANDS ENGINEERING TEAM

MADISON, WI, FEBRUARY 4, 2008 -- Galaxy Technologies, Inc. announces the additions of two key members, with a combined total of over 2 decades of experience to its Engineering team- Neil Fairbanks Jr. and Ben McPhee.

Neil Fairbanks joins Galaxy in the role of Software Applications Developer. With over 10 years of software and programming experience, as well as a background in a broad range of technological environments, Neil spearheads the development and creation of specialized utilities and interfaces for integrating client data between various applications and the Sage Abra Suite of HR and payroll solutions.

With over 10 years experience as a programmer and analyst, Ben McPhee joins the Galaxy Engineering team in the role of Software Applications Developer. Ben's primary focus is developing customized add-ons, data exchange tools and complex, client-tailored utilities for Galaxy's flagship TimeStar Enterprise™ time & attendance solution. Ben also researches and implements proof-of-concept ideas for next-generation technologies to be incorporated into future TimeStar™ releases and platform enhancements.

About Galaxy Technologies, Inc.

Galaxy was built and remains fundamentally centered on engineering and development with a consultative approach. Over three-fourths of the Galaxy team are Engineers and/or Software Consultants with the technical experience and "know-how" to ensure clients receive the expert attention, training, and ongoing support needed to keep HRIS projects in-line with specific business needs.

Headquartered in Madison Wisconsin with offices and partners located throughout North America, Galaxy has been developing and delivering innovative labor productivity tools since 1988. Galaxy's principle products include software solutions to track, allocate, analyze, and control labor resources. Galaxy also offers a comprehensive range of automated time collection devices for all employee populations. Galaxy is a distinctive organization with an extensive background in creating and developing a complete system solution in a variety of operational areas, with particular focus in time & attendance, human resources, payroll and data collection systems.
